Proved Her Nationality.

Recently a bent old lady entered one of the Salina street stores and upon being asked what she wished to see made reply in what the clerk judged to be an unknown language. A second inquiry proving no more satisfactory, the clerk excused herself and went in search of one of her colleagues who is of German descent.

"Oh, Miss L.," she entreated, "won't you come over to my counter for a minute? There's a poor old German lady there, and I can't understand a word she says."

Miss L. followed and, pausing before the stool on which the would be customer was seated, inquired in her sweetest tones:

"Are you a German?"

The "poor old German lady" raised her handkerchief to her lips and evidently extricated something from her mouth. Then, bending a look of the utmost scorn upon the clerk, she exclaimed in a rich and unmistakable brogue:

"Garman, is it? Indade an I'm not. But I've got a new set of false tathe, bad scran to thim! An now, if ye plase, will wan of yez wait on me?"—Syracuse Herald.

Entertaining Squirrels.

Alive in his native woods the squirrel is an amusing little fellow, and he will entertain you by the hour if you will let him.

You probably become first aware of his presence by his dropping things on your head. Then he plays hide and seek with you as he zigzags up a tree. While he pauses for thought, or possibly to wash his face, another squirrel comes scudding along the branches of a neighboring tree, and away they go, one chasing the other, jumping from branch tip to branch tip, racing up and down the trunk and making the bark fly. Sometimes one loses his footing and falls headlong 20 or 30 feet to the ground, landing there with a force that makes him bounce. You think every grain of sense must be knocked out of the small body, but he only blinks a bit, and, after a moment spent perhaps in letting the stars set that must have suddenly risen before his eyes, he streaks it up the nearest tree after the other fellow. Long after they have disappeared from sight you hear them chattering together up among the leaves like two watchmen's rattles.—Philadelphia Record.

Her Opinion of Asparagus.

It seems that asparagus is not grown in the tropics—at least it was not grown at Rio de Janeiro when a certain American gentleman, who had lived several years in the Brazilian capital, went with his wife and 8-year-old daughter to visit friends living near Buenos Ayres, a part of the continent where the climate is better adapted to the fruits and vegetables of the temperate regions.

At the first dinner after their arrival the visitors were treated to some fresh asparagus. The little 8-year-old daughter was likewise served with the asparagus, but she evidently did not think much of it as an article of food.

Her mother tried for some time to coax her to eat it. Finally the little girl, taken between the rudeness of whispering at the table and the rudeness of not eating her food, leaned over and, with a choking voice and quivering lip, whispered to her mother: "Mamma, it is not nice. It's raw at one end and rotten at the other."

An English Explanation.

This is the way a prominent English paper explains it:

The president of the United States, who receives a salary of £10,000 a year, must pay for all the food consumed at the White House, and the expenses of getting up an elaborate state dinner are not small. Cigars and wines the president buys, and they must be of the best. He has to maintain his own equipage. The government, however, allows him a valet; also a clerk, who opens all his letters. All other personal servants must be engaged by the master and mistress of the White House.

Scandinavian English.

Sir Herbert Maxwell gives in his "Memories of the Months" the following copy of a beguiling advertisement set forth by a Scandinavian who could "spik Inglis" and who had a shrewd idea of luring tourists to his salmon river:

Look Her! Salmon! The honorable travelers are averted to, that undersigned, who lives in Fjorde pr. Vol. den Romsdals county, Norway, short or long time, hires out a good Salmonriver. Good lodging finds. DIDRIK MAAN.

A Combination Tree.

A pine tree and a birch tree have grown so close together in Woolwich, Me., that one trunk serves for both, sending forth pine branches on one side and birch on the other. The union seems a happy one in spite of the fact that the two trees are as widely separated by the botanists as two well can be, and the gnarled branches of the pine embrace the birch in a most affectionate manner.

They Were Discovered.

When they went into the hotel, he was determined to do nothing to betray the fact that they were newly married. He took up the pen for his first registration under the new conditions and with an old married man look and sweep of indifference wrote, "Mr. and Mrs. Mary Tompkins."

"Will you have the bridal chamber, Mr. Tompkins?" asked the clerk.—New York Herald.

Sorry He Spoke.

Guest (indignantly)—Waiter, there are feathers in the soup!

Waiter (inspecting it)—Why, so there are. I thought I was giving you gravy soup. It's chicken broth, sir; costs sixpence more. (Changes figures on the bill.)—Exchange.

HOPES FULFILLED.

After the rain, then the sunshine again;
After the night the dawn,
And a sweet release and abiding peace
After the pain has gone.
But over and over this lesson stern
The fickle and careless old world must learn:
Under the beauty and bloom of the rose,
In hiding, the sharp, cruel thorns repose.

He only knows of the sweetness that flows
From nature's purest rills
Who, weary, mounts to the life giving founts
Far up among the hills.
But over and over this lesson stern
The fickle and careless old world must learn:
Under the beauty and bloom of the rose,
In hiding, the sharp, cruel thorns repose.

After the fear and the sad, bitter tear,
Come the hope fulfilled;
After the climb, then the prospect sublime,
As the Good Father willed.
But over and over this lesson stern
The fickle and careless old world must learn:
Under the beauty and bloom of the rose,
In hiding, the sharp, cruel thorns repose.

LADY LIGHTFINGERS.

By M. Quad.

Copyright, 1901, by C. B. Lewis.

The start of the whole matter was the lodging of a complaint at Scotland Yard by a well known jeweler doing business on the Strand. He had missed two diamond rings from a tray he had been exhibiting to several lady customers. But unfortunately for him the gems had been gone an hour perhaps before he knew that deft fingers had purloined them under his very eyes. He could recall the names of four or five ladies, and he headed the list with the name of a marquis' wife, but the inspector on duty might well smile and turn away at that. Had the jeweler not been in such a perturbed state of mind he would never have included that name. Indeed, before he left the place he apologized, partly to himself, for having given any names at all, as it was utterly absurd to suspect any of the owners of having taken the rings. He seemed to feel it a duty to report his loss, however, and after being quietly advised to have an eye on his employees and unknown customers he was dismissed with the promise that the matter would be looked into. As a matter of fact, no assignment was made on the case. Some flash chap had "lifted" the jewels without even his call being remembered, and it was no use to hunt for a needle in a haystack.

BY A TREMENDOUS EFFORT SHE PULLED HERSELF TOGETHER.

It wasn't three days before another case was reported by another Strand jeweler. This time it was a diamond sunburst, and he was positive that he had shown it to only three ladies before he missed it. He was reluctant to give the names, but when pressed to do so that of the marquis' wife again headed the list. The others were almost as far above suspicion, and the inspector looked at the complainant in a way to make him feel like a culprit. This time I was put on the case, but I shall be honest enough to say that it was a mere matter of form. It was more than any official's head was worth even to hint that one of the three ladies mentioned might have carried the ornament away in a moment of absentmindedness.

It was about five days after this that the third case was reported. This time a jeweler had lost a pair of valuable diamond earrings, and he had to be hard pressed by the inspector before he would admit that the loss was detected almost immediately after the marquis' wife had left the store. She had greatly admired the ornaments and had partly decided to purchase them at a later date. Not for one instant, not on his life, did the jeweler suspect the lady of title of even taking the jewel away in a fit of abstraction, but somehow he felt it his duty to report the case. The inspector didn't bluff this third tradesman quite as heavily as he had the first and second, and he looked grave and thoughtful when I was given the case and he related particulars. I was told to go my own way about it, but if I made a blunder Scotland Yard would see me no more as a detective. That wasn't at all encouraging, you see, but I had to go ahead and make a start. Much to my surprise, after thinking the matter over I came to the conclusion that the marquis' wife might possibly be guilty of shoplifting. The idea almost took my breath away at the first go off, but when I came to recall the many rumors about the marquis being a gambler, hard up, a man of miserish habits at home, and so forth, there looked to be something in it from a detective's standpoint.

The lady was well known to me by sight. She was past 45, much faded, and her face always carried a fretful, worried look. I simply waited until she appeared on the street in her carriage, as if bound on a shopping tour, and then followed her. It was a week after the third case was reported that she came out, and she went directly to a Bond street jeweler's. I followed her into the store, where she was known and received with great servility, and when a tray of jewelry was placed before her I felt sure that the next half hour would clear her of all suspicion or complicate the case still further. Her manner was that of lofty condescension. She slowly and languidly inspected the jewels, and now and then the proprietor of the store, who was waiting upon her in person, had his attention attracted for the moment elsewhere. My lady finally decided to call again and was bowed out, and she was hardly clear of the door when I revealed my identity to the jeweler and asked him to be sure that there was nothing missing from the tray. He was at first inclined to administer a snub, but when he found the finest ring of the lot conspicuously absent he almost fell over in a faint. There was no room to doubt that the lady had "lifted" it, but that only made the case worse in a way. For a tradesman and a detective to charge a lady of quality with shoplifting was as bad as treason against the crown. A mere word would bring financial ruin upon the jeweler, and he was ready to stand the loss ten times over rather than speak it.

Twice more within the next fortnight I followed the lady into jewelry establishments and morally convicted her of shoplifting. This made six cases in all, and, no matter how the victims felt, we of the Yard were quite determined that something ought to be done. I had been on the staff for ten years, and my work had given good satisfaction, but I was selected as a sacrifice. I mean by that that I was ordered to secure an interview with the lady, inform her of my discoveries and take the consequences. I must take all the burden on myself and clear the Yard. There could be but one ending, and before making my call my resignation was written out, and I had arranged to go with a private agency. One morning I appeared at the residence of the marquis and boldly asked for my lady on important business. I was kept waiting until she was satisfied that I was neither a process server nor a creditor and was then admitted to the presence of a very slipshod looking woman who showed me scant courtesy when she said:

"Well, sir, you are here, and now what is it?"

"It's about the jewelry, my lady," I replied.

"What do you mean?"

"The finger rings from Black's, the sunburst from Brown's, the earrings from Green's. You carried them away and forgot to return them."

My lady's face went white as snow, and she gasped for breath, and I expected to see her faint away. By a tremendous effort she pulled herself together, and as the color came back to her cheeks she hissed at me:

"You dog, you! The marquis shall see that you get your just deserts! Leave the house at once!"

I left, and within an hour the marquis was at the Yard to say that he would uproot the whole system if I was not promptly bounced and an apology rendered. The Yard apologized, I was bounced, and my lady had a story for her friends about attempted blackmail. There were no more thefts, however, and as a private detective I even recovered some of the stuff from the shops where my lady's maid had pledged them to raise cash for her mistress.

A VERY CURIOUS BIRD.

The One Young Mark Twain Sprung Upon the Scientists.

Mark Twain's father was an ornithologist. He had several friends who were also enthusiasts on the subject of birds. Whenever any one of them discovered a rara avis it was the custom to have a consultation. Mark had been a witness of several of these bird inquests and had noted the delight the old men took in discussing a new found specimen. One day it occurred to him to provide the Hannibal ornithologists with a real circus in the form of a bird. He killed a crow and also a barnyard rooster. Plucking out the tail feathers of both the crow and the rooster, he substituted the rooster's tail feathers for those of the crow, producing a unique effect. When he had the specimen nicely prepared, he went to his father and, handing it to him, said:

"Here, father, is a very curious bird I shot. I thought you would be interested in it."

The old gentleman gazed upon the specimen with astonishment. That evening the ornithologists of Hannibal were assembled in Mr. Clemens' parlor. The rare specimen was put before them. The discussion was long and learned. The opinions expressed were various. One thought the bird was an offshoot of the bird of paradise family; others had equally ridiculous notions as to its ancestry. But there was one who refused to be swerved by the peculiarity of the bird's tail from the judgment that it was of the crow family.

"Why, just look here," he said, lifting the bird by its tail feathers. He got no further. The feathers came out. There was a quick closing of a door. Mr. Clemens started to leave the room.

"Gentlemen," he said, "please excuse me a few moments. I will see Samuel first and explain later."

EATING FISH.

It is not good form to ask for a second helping of fish.

It is considered extremely bad form to use a knife in dissecting fish.

A little modern fish knife, with an ingenious fork arrangement on one side, is now made.

A bit of lemon is served with broiled and baked fish, and it is in correct form to use the fingers in expressing the juice.

Potatoes are considered a proper accessory to the fish course.

Sliced cucumbers, with plain French dressing, are also served.

With a boiled fish the potatoes are also usually boiled, cut into bits or scooped out and garnished with a little melted butter and chopped parsley.

Never use the fingers to separate the bones from the eatable portion of fish. The bones must be evaded with such dexterity as one can command without other aid than such as a bit of bread held in the left hand may furnish.

The emblem of the New York City History club is the industrious little beaver, typical of the sturdy ancestors, surrounded by a circle. This beaver was part of the ancient seal of New Amsterdam.

There is nothing like Asthmalene. It brings instant relief, even in the worst cases. It cures when all else fails.

The Rev. C. F. WELLS of Villa Ridge, Ill., says: "Your trial bottle of Asthmalene received in good condition. I cannot tell you how thankful I feel for the good derived from it. I was a slave, chained with putrid sore throat and Asthma for ten years. I despaired of ever being cured. I saw your advertisement for the cure of this dreadful and tormenting disease, Asthma, and thought you had overspoken yourselves, but resolved to give it a trial. To my astonishment the trial acted like a charm. Send me a full-size bottle."

Rev. Dr. Morris Wechler,
Rabbi of the Cong. Bnai Israel,
NEW YORK, Jan. 3, 1901.

DRS. TAFT BROS. MEDICINE CO.,
Gentlemen: Your Asthmalene is an excellent remedy for Asthma and Hay Fever, and its compositton alleviates all troubles which combine with Asthma. Its success is wonderful and astonishing

After having it carefully analyzed, we can state that Asthmalene contains no opium, morphine, chloroform or ether. Very truly yours,
REV. DR. MORRIS WECHSLER.

AVON SPRINGS, N. Y., Feb. 1, 1901.

DR. TAFT BROS. MEDICINE CO.
Gentlemen: I write this testimonial from a sense of duty, having tested the wonderful effect of your Asthmalene, for the cure of Asthma. My wife has been afflicted with spasmodic Asthma for the past 12 years. Having exhausted my own skill as well as many others, I chanced to see your sign upon your windows on 130th street, New York, I at once obtained a bottle of Asthmalene. My wife commenced taking it about the first of November. I very soon noticed a radical improvement. After taking one bottle her Asthma has disappeared and she is entirely free from all symptoms. I feel that I can consistently recommend the medicine to all who are afflicted with this distressing disease.
Yours respectfully, O. D. PHELPS, M. D.

February 5, 1901.

DR. TAFT BROS. MEDICINE CO.
Gentlemen: I was troubled with Asthma for 22 years. I have tried numerous remedies, but they have all failed. I ran across your advertisement and started with a trial bottle. I found relief at once. I have since purchased your full-size bottle, and I am ever grateful. I have a family of four children, and for six years was unable to work. I am now in the best of health and am doing business every day. This testimony you can make use of as you see fit.

Weekly Crop Bulletin.

United States Department of Agriculture. Climate and Crop Bulletin of the Weather Bureau, California Section, Coast and Bay Division, for the week ending Monday, August, 12th, 1901.

The weather has been favorable for all farm work, except that in some sections harvesting has been somewhat retarded by heavy fogs. The rain of the 5th along the coast was beneficial to beans, and did not injure other crops. Harvesting and threshing are progressing. Most of the wheat is ley, is also of good quality and a large crop. Harvest will continue for several weeks in some sections, but is nearly completed in others. Sugar beets, hops and corn are in good condition. Fruit picking and drying continue. In some places the yield of prunes is better than expected. Grapes are looking well, and will probably yield a fair crop. In the vicinity of San Luis Obispo apples are falling badly, from some unknown cause, and that loss will be heavy. Citrus fruits are in good condition.

THE annual report of the City Clerk showing the financial condition of the city on the first of last month appears in these columns. The report shows that the revenue of the city has been derived as follows: Licenses, $1172.35; taxes, $1468.79; street poll taxes, $126.70; from other sources, $34; making a total of $2801.84 collected since July 1, 1900. The report also shows that there was a surplus of $340.05 from the previous year's collections, making a total of $3141.89 on hand during the fiscal year just passed. Of this sum $2114.85 has been expended in conducting the affairs of the city for a twelfthmonth, leaving a surplus on hand of $1027.03.

This is an excellent showing, considering that $586.50 has been expended for electric light—a new item of expense—without increasing the average annual tax levy.

Of the surplus now on hand something like one-half or two-thirds will be set aside to help swell the fund for building a new City Hall in the Plaza. This is a much-needed improvement and in order to hasten the day for commencing work on the structure the Trustees will be perfectly justified in sinking all the money they can for that purpose.

At the present rate of saving it will be at least two or three years before Sonoma can expect to be able to remove the old concern that now answers the purpose of a City Hall and erecting in its stead a modern edifice that will be a credit to the town.

WINTERS, the great figure in the Selby robbery, has shrunk into insignificance. Dazzled by the gleam of $320,000 worth of bullion he lost his head and the detectives nabbed him. Prosperity was too much for the man. He bit off more than he could chew. Had he been content with a modest steal he might be living in luxury to-day. Instead he is back at the old stand, the laughing stock of the world. Winters' mental calibre was all right, but he did not use enough ammunition considering the big game.

Memorial or Tribute

A beautiful bronze statue of the German poets Gœthe and Schiller has been presented to San Francisco by her German-American citizens. Why?

Our San Francisco contemporaries say "to perpetuate the memory of two German master minds." Can this shapen mass of stone, beautiful as it is, perpetuate the memory of a Gœthe and a Schiller? Do they above all the poets, and most of all Gœthe, need such a memorial? You and I must have a graven stone or we will be forgotten. That must perpetuate our memories.

But Gœthe and Schiller?—Never.

What is the sculptor's art to their's? What can the sculptor give?

He can give us the thoughtful brow, the slender hand, the well turned limbs—in short the man. But he cannot give us the poet.

All the art of a Phidias could not give us the thoughts of a Gœthe or a Schiller, and it is the thoughtful Gœthe and Schiller that we would have and have.

Such minds hew out their own monuments in the ages.

What bronze can compare with "The Maid of Orleans?"

What figure tells us as much of Gœthe as does his own "Faust"—that wonder of the age—that drama that is evolutionizing modern thought?

The chisel falls from the sculptor's hand. His art is indeed weak. For he can chisel neither the mind, the thought nor the reason of genius.

The Gœthe-Schiller monument stands in Golden Gate Park, but it is but a tribute from appreciative hearts. They who love and revere Gœthe and Schiller did not dream of perpetuating the memories of the poets by so fragile an offering.

It was a tribute.

Nothing more.

—o—

"Content of mind is a blessing kind,
And a jovial heart is a purse well lined;
So what care I, let the world slide by,
T's better far to laugh than cry."

This is the song of the Epicurean—only an echo from a little comic opera but it means something and that something is happiness.

And what is happiness you ask. The world has been asking itself the self same question since earth rose out of Chaos. There is a seeming paradox in the term happiness. A king in royal purple tells you he is unhappy, a tramp in rags and tatters has no complaints, the woman of wealth sits weeping in her bodouir while her washerwoman in the alley is singing a rollicksome song.

Wealth, power, position, fame, admiration, you may have all these and still be unhappy.

Health you may say is happiness and yet I have seen the crippled child and talked with her and she is happy.

The healthy are often most unhappy.

What then is happiness?

How can the tramp, the washerwoman and the cripple be happy?

The Epicureans have solved the problem, true happiness is tranquility of mind.

The believer is happy because he feels that he is going straight to heaven.

The unbeliever is happy because he is convinced there is no hell. Believing as they do, their minds are tranquil and they are without a doubt happy.

You may fill the cup brim full of the joys of life. You may taste of pleasures that will intoxicate, but this is but temporary joy.

True happiness is more rational.

It is well defined by the Epicurean.

THE HOME GOLD CURE.

An Ingenious Treatment by Which Drunkards are Being Cured Daily in Spite of Themselves.

No Noxious Doses—No Weakening of the Nerves—A Pleasant and Positive Cure for the Liquor Habit.

It is now generally known and understood that Drunkenness is a disease and not weakness. A body filled with poison, and nerves completely shattered by periodical or constant use of intoxicating liquors, requires an ant dote capable of neutralizing and eradicating this poison, and destroying the craving for intoxicants. Sufferers may now cure themselves at home without publicity or loss of time from business by this wonderful "HOME GOLD CURE" which has been perfected after many years of close study and treatment of inebriates. The faithful use according to directions of this wonderful discovery is positively guaranteed to cure the most obstinate case, no matter how hard a drinker. Our records show t e marvelous transformation of thousands of Drunkards into sober, industrious and upright men.

WIVES CURE YOUR HUSBANDS!! CHILDREN CURE YOUR FATHERS!! This remedy is in no senes a nostrum but is a specific for this disease only, and is so skillfully devised and prepared that it is thoroughly soluble and pleasant to the taste, so that it can be given in a cup of tea or coffee without the knowledge of the person taking it. Thousands of Drunkards have cured themselves with this priceless remedy, and as many more have been cured and made temperate men by having the "CURE" administered by loving friends and relatives without their knowledge in coffee or tea, and believe today that they discontinued drinking of their own free will. DO NOT WAIT. Do not be deluded by apparent and misleading "improvement." Drive out the disease at once and for all time. "The HOME GOLD CURE" is sold at the extremely low price of One Dollar, thus placing within reach of everybody a treatment more effectual than others costing $25 to $50. Full directions accompany each package. Special advice by skilled physicians when requested without extra charge. Sent prepaid to any part of the world on receipt of One Dollar. Address Dept. E 428, EDWIN B. GILES & COMPANY, 2330 and 2332 Marstreet, Philadelphia.

Smash-Up.

A bus load of guests from the Lawrence Villa met with an accident at Melitta last Sunday. The bus, which contained eight or ten men, women and children, upset in front of the Sportsmens' Retreat, and all were dumped unceremoniously into the middle of the road. All escaped serious injury, although two of the young women in the party were severely bruised and required the services of a doctor upon their arrival in town. The accident was caused by the driver letting one of the lines slip out of his hands and losing control of the horses. The animals ran the rig against a big oak tree. There was a violent concussion and the inmates went flying through the air and landed in the road, having no time to look for that proverbial soft spot. The bus was so badly smashed up that the party of pleasure-seekers were compelled to return to town by train. The rig, which belonged to Granville Harris' livery stable, was left behind but was subsequently patched up and returned to the stables, the damage being made good.

They Took a Header.

Thursday morning while Dr. Rich and Fred Harrison were speeding along the county road on their bicycles the wheel of the latter struck a deep rut when near the Bella Vista ranch, and he was thrown face downward in the deep dust. The doctor, who was ahead, looked over his shoulder to see the effect of Harrison's fall, when his wheel wobbled and he, too, took a header. Both escaped injury, but it is said that Harrison's face after "biting the dust" looked decidedly soiled. Harrison, who is considered a man of good taste, says that as far as he was able to judge the Napa road dust should make excellent mud pies.

Fell into a Vat of Boiling Lye.

George Lowell, son of A. D. Lowell, while dipping prunes on Thursday last, slipped and fell into a vat of boiling concentrated lye. Fortunately he went into the vat feet foremost and was enabled to get out almost quickly as he fell in. His shoes and pants protected his limbs, but for all that his right leg was scalded from the knee down, so that the skin peeled completely off the member. The injury will lay him up for some time.

Rattlesnakes.

Rattlesnakes have not been so numerous in the valley for years as this season. In addition to the large number already reported killed in this vicinity the past month, Carl Dresel, who is outing at the base of Hood Mountain, near the headwaters of Sonoma creek, killed three near his camp last week. On Monday Philip Bill nearly stepped on a big rattler on the Gundlach ranch, which curled up and was ready for a spring when he dispatched it with a big stone.

Will Study Medicine.

Fred. Harrison, the electrician who has been the lessee of the Sonoma Electric Light plant the past year, will throw up his lease on September 1st, and enter the California Eclectic Medical College of San Francisco, where he will take a four-years' course in medicine.

At the expiration of Mr. Harrison's lease the electric light plant will be turned over to W. T Rutledge of San Francisco, who is also an experienced electrician.

Independence of Switzerland.

The Sonoma Swiss National Club at a meeting held in this place Sunday decided to celebrate the anniversary of the independence of Switzerland in Sonoma on Saturday, September 21st. The following were appointed a committee to make the necessary arrangements: George Bulotti, Pio Pianetti, Theo. Riebli, Petter Yenni, Victor Sartori, James Pedroia, Nick Codiga, A. Beretta and N. Tomasi.

Recovered from His Injury

Ex Sergeant Harris of the U. S. Army, who came very near being killed by a horse rearing backward and falling upon him a few weeks ago, has entirely recovered from his injuries. He has been under the care of Dr. Thomson.

COL. GEORGE F. HOOPER PASSES AWAY.

Expired Suddenly in San Francisco.

Col. Geo. F. Hooper, for nearly twenty years a resident of this valley, died at his home in San Francisco Sunday. His death was due to heart disease.

Col. Hooper was a native of Virginia, and was within a day of being seventy-five years of age when he died. He was a West Pointer and served through the Mexican war with distinction and after the treaty of peace had been signed between the two republics he was one of the surveying party which came to this State for the purpose of establishing the boundary lines between California and Mexico. In 1852 he was appointed post trader at Fort Yuma and afterward founded the firm of George Hooper & Co. Locating in San Francisco in the early fifties he engaged in the shipping business and for a time was interested in a line of vessels which carried freight to the mouth of the Colorado river. He retired from active business life in 1876, came to this valley and became the owner of Sobre Vista ranch, now the property of Rudolph Spreckels.

When Col. Hooper purchased the estate of 900 acres it was a wilderness. He built a magnificent mansion upon a commanding slope, surrounding it with tropical and semi-tropical fruits and flowers. He also spent large sums of money in other improvements and made it one of the most valuable and productive farms in the Sonoma Valley.

Here he and his amiable wife, a Carrol of Carrolton, dispensed genuine hospitality for many years.

The Hoopers identified themselves with the interests of the valley and made friends of the country folk for miles around. They were universally respected for their many virtues of both heart and mind.

A widow and two adopted sons, Joseph and George W. Hooper, and a brother, Major Hooper of the Occidental Hotel, San Francisco, are the surviving relatives.

Col. Hooper was a member of the Society of California Pioneers and a devout Roman Catholic in his religious faith.

All Going to the Circus.

Everybody is talking about Ringling Bros.' famous big circus which is to exhibit in Santa Rosa, Thursday, August 22d. Several big excursions will go from this vicinity and the popularity of the show will insure an enormous crowd. People from this locality should make an especial effort to arrive in time to see the new free street carnival which precedes the exhibition every morning at 10 o'clock. The procession is divided into thirty enormous sections, each of which is a complete parade, and presents in its entirety a bewilderingly magnificent two mile carnival of pageantry such as the world has never seen. In this gorgeous display are shown over 100 beautiful dens and cages of wild animals, 500 horses, 30 elephants and nearly a thousand people, and the costumes throughout are of the finest silks, satins, and cloth of gold. The performance that follows is the most magnificent arenic display ever presented by any circus in America.

To the many friends and neighbors who so kindly lent their aid and sympathy in my late bereavement, I hereby wish to express my heartfelt thanks and appreciation.

MRS ELLEN GLYNN.

What are Humors?

They are vitiated or morbid fluids coursing the veins and affecting the tissues. They are commonly due to defective digestion but are sometimes inherited.

How do they manifest themselves?

In many forms of cutaneous eruption, salt rheum or eczema, pimples and boils, and in weakness, languor, general debility.

How are they expelled? By

Hood's Sarsaparilla

which also builds up the system that has suffered from them.

It is the best medicine for all humors.

DEATH OF JAMES GLYNN.

Jas. C. Glynn, son of Mrs. Ellen Glynn for many years owner of the Sonoma House property in this place, died at his home here Sunday afternoon.

The summons came suddenly. He had been sitting on the rear porch of the hotel for some time when he arose and entered the office and sat down in a chair. His brother Will noticed that he appeared to be very weak and asked him if he would assist him to his room. He said "yes, but you will have to carry me," and lay back in the chair all but unconscious. He was quickly carried to his room and expired a few minutes thereafter.

Jimmy Glynn, as he was familiary known to almost everybody in this valley, was a victim of consumption. A number of years ago his health commenced to fail and he suffered several severe hemorrhages. He quickly recovered from these attacks and was up and around most of the time up to the very hour of his death.

Jimmy Glynn was born and raised in this valley. He attended our public schools, took part in charitable entertainments, joined in the social hop and in various other ways identified himself with the younger element of Sonoma, and the untimely death of this young man will be sincerely regretted by the many, very many, friends of his youth.

James Glynn was 29 years of age. He leaves a mother and two brothers, Thomas and William Glynn, to mourn his leave-taking.

The funeral took place Tuesday from St. Francis' Church, the Rev. Father Leahy preaching a very impressive funeral sermon over the remains of the young man.

The funeral was largely attended, the remains being laid to rest in the Catholic Cemetery.

O. Palstine, for several years teacher of the Harvey district school at El Verano, has been called to Downieville, Sierra county, to take the principalship of the Grammar School of five rooms in that place. He will leave for his new home in a week or two.

IMPORTANT TO DAIRYMEN.

A Special Dairy Course at the California University.

A special course of instruction in dairy husbandry will be offered by the University of California in connection with the college of agriculture, beginning Wednesday, October 9th, and closing Thursday, December 12th, 1901.

This course is designed to meet the needs of all persons who are engaged in the various lines of dairy manufacture and desire to make themselves more familiar with the principles underlying the manufacture of milk products and the application of those principles to actual practice, to the end that they may know how to turn out an improved product.

The dairy course is open to all persons of good moral character who are at least 17 years of age and who have a common school education. No formal entrance examination will be required but it is expected that all applicants will have had sufficiet school training to enable them to intelligently understand lectures, take notes, and perform the necessary text book work. The usual grammar school course gives a fair preparation for this work, although the better the previous education of the student the greater will be the benefit to be derived from the instruction given.

Instruction in the dairy course will be given largely by means of practical work, supplemented by such lectures, recitations, and demonstrations as are necessary to make plain the principles involved, and to give the student an insight into the various branches of science upon which true dairy development rests. The first two hours of each day, viz: from 8 until 10 o'clock, will be spent in the lecture room. The remaining portion of the day will be occupied in the work room and laboratory—the time required varying from three to six hours, depending upon the particular work at which the student is employed. The students time will be so arranged that they will spend two days of each week in separating cream and butter making, two days in cheese making, and two days in the dairy laboratory.

The lectures and recitations will include the study of milk and its products: dairy bacteriology, dairy chemestry, feeding animals, growing forage crops, breeds and breeding of animals, veterinary science, and the steam engine.

The laboratory and practical work will consist of butter and cheese making; milk testing; dairy problems and accounts, and operating steam engines.

THE RAILROAD SCARE

ODD EFFECTS OF THE FIRST SIGHT OF A LOCOMOTIVE.

Some of the People of the South Hid Behind Trees In 1833, When the Iron Horse Went By—The Country's Earliest Railroad.

America cannot lay claim to the first locomotive or the first railroad. That great honor lies with England. Yet Yankee genius was not very far behind her, for, when George Stephenson launched his first real locomotive, the Rocket, on the Liverpool and Manchester road in 1829, the first spike had been driven on the Baltimore and Ohio railroad, July 4, 1828, by Charles Carroll of Carrollton, the last surviving signer of the Declaration of Independence. This was the first road started in the United States, and in 1830 it had reached Ellicott Mills, 13 miles from Baltimore.

But the south can claim the honor of completing the longest railroad in the world at that date, being the old Charleston and Hamburg road, now a part of the South Carolina and Georgia system, which was begun in 1830, and by October, 1833, it had 137 miles of track in operation. In a letter from Mr. Samuel C. Clarke of Georgia, a kinsman of the writer, who attained the extreme age of 91 years and who had seen the beginning and the completion of this road, he thus gives his experience upon first sight of a locomotive:

"One day while going down to Charleston with a party of gentlemen to attend the races as we approached the city we saw in the distance the new railroad, finished some 10 or 12 miles out of Charleston. It was built upon piles, longer or short, according to the nature of the ground. Sometimes in crossing a ravine the rails were 20 feet from the surface. Our track ran near this elevated road, and soon a horrid shriek as from 20 panthers was heard in the woods. By this time we were nervous. Elephants and lions we had heard of, and some of us had seen them, but what monster was this whose screams we heard? Presently it came in sight, flying aloft through the air and breathing fire and smoke, and our frightened steeds became unmanageable, and in fact I think that some of our party were as badly frightened as their horses. If any of my readers are old enough to remember the introduction of locomotives and how they felt at first sight of them, they will perhaps understand our sensations that day in the pine woods.

"A mile or two farther on we came to a broken wagon by the side of the road, and near it sat a Georgia cracker smoking his pipe. On being asked what was his trouble he replied, 'Well, stranger, I've often learn tell of nullification, and now I reckon I've saw it for true.'"

It is somewhat amusing now to read of the superstitious dread with which the inhabitants looked upon the building of these first railroads. Some thought the smoke of the continual passing trains would cause a pestilence or destroy all the crops along the road. Others were afraid to ride on the cars for fear of having their breath taken away, and the people in the cities objected to the railroad being built because they feared the smoke from the engines would soil the clothes which were hung out to dry.

Many are yet living who looked upon the terrible, screeching iron monster with awe and trepidation. Mr. Nat McGee of Ivy, Albemarle, tells a joke upon himself that when he heard the train coming he jumped from his horse and got behind a tree, where he viewed it for fear of being run over. Mr. W. T. Prout, who was taking a wagon load of produce to Richmond, when he reached Gordonville heard the whistle and terrible noise of the approaching train, and he and his companions were so scared that they sprang out, leaped the fence and ran across the field to a safe distance, leaving the wagon and team to its fate, but when the train appeared it was only an engine and one coach.

The first roadbeds were formed, as has been stated, by driving piles in the ground, upon the top of which were placed wooden stringers, in which were cut a groove for the wheels to run. These were called "wooden railroads" and at a distance appeared like the elevated railroads in the cities of the present day. The honor of this invention was contested between John Hartman of Scottsville, Va., and John Williams, an engineer of Ohio, but it did not prove a bonanza to either, for the wheels were constantly bouncing out of the groove, and the piles soon after gave place to solid dirt embankments, and strap iron rails were substituted for the wooden groove. But the grading was very imperfect and uneven, which made riding on one of these primitive railroads like going over a corduroy road in a springless wagon, with the cars bouncing over these rough rails to the jingling music of the windows.—Richmond Dispatch.

Do Carpets Shorten Life?

Just think what a horrible receptacle of unclean things the carpet is in the rich English or French house! Where there are carpets, people should on entering be given slippers, as in the Netherlands, or the footbath, as at a Turkish mosque. Making servants sweep carpets is another proof that evil is wrought for want of thought. Flourens attributed the prevalence of lung and throat diseases in England to carpeted rooms.—London Truth.

A WORTHY SUCCESSOP.

"Something New Under the Sun."

All Doctors have tried to cure CATARRH by the use of powders, acid, gases, inhalers and drugs in paste form. Their powders dry up the mucuous membranes, causing them to crack open and bleed. The powerful acids used in the inhalers have entirely eaten away the same membranes that their makers have aimed to cure, while pastes and ointments cannot reach the disease. An old and experienced practitioner who has for many years made a close study and specialty of the treatment of CATARRH, has at last perfected a Treatment which when faithfully used, not only relieves at once, but permanently curres CATARRH, by removing the cause, stopping the discharges, and curing all inflammation. It is the only remedy known to science that actually reaches the afflicted parts. This wonderful remedy is known as "SNUFFLES the GUARANTEED CATARRH CURE" and is sold at the extremely low price of One Dollar, each package containing internal and external med cine sufficient for a full month's treatment and everything necessary to its perfect use.

"SNUFFLES" is the only perfect CATARRH CURE ever made and is now recognized as the only safe and positive cure for that annoying and disgusting disease. It cures all inflammation quickly and permanently and is also wonderfully quick to relieve HAY FEVER or COLD in the HEAD.

CATARRH when neglected often leads to CONSUMPTION—"SNUFFLES" will save you if you use it at once. It is no ordinary remedy, but a complete treatment which is positively guaranteed to cure CATARRH in any form or stage if used according to directions which acompany each package. Don't delay but send for it at once, and write full particulars as to your condition, and you will receive special advice from the discoverer of this wonderful remedy regarding your case without cost to you beyond the regular price of "SNUFFLES" the "GUARANTEED CATARRH CURE.

Sent prepaid to any address in the United States or Canada on the receipt of One Dollar. Address Dept. E 428, EDWIN B. GILES & COMPANY, 2330 and 2332 Market street, Philadelphia.

A Minister's Good Work.

"I had a severe attack of bilious colic, got a bottle of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy, took two doses and was entirely cured," says Rev. A. A. Power, of Emporia, Kan. "My neighbor across the street was sick for over a week had two or three bottles of medicine from the doctor. He used them for three or four days without relief, then called in another doctor who treated him for some days and gave him no relief, so discharged him. I went over to see him the next morning. He said his bowels were in a terrible fix, that they had been running off so long that it was almost bloody flux. I asked him if he had tried Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy and he said, 'No.' I went home and brought him my bottle and gave him one dose; told him to take another dose in fifteen or twenty minutes if he did not find relief, but he took no more and was entirely cured." For sale by F. Duhring. *

At Bed Time

I take a pleasant herb drink, the next morning I feel bright and my complexion is better. My doctor says it acts gently on the stomach, liver and kidneys, and is a gentle laxative. It is made from herbs, and is prepared as easily as tea. It is called Lane's Medicine. All druggists sell it at 25cts and 50cts. Lane's family medicine moves the bowels each day. If you cannot get it send for a free sample. Address, Orator F. Woodward, Le Roy, N. Y.

"Through the months of June and July our baby was teething and took a running off of the bowels and sickness of the stomach," says O. P. M. Hollliday, of Deming, Ind. "His bowels would move from five to eight times a day. I had a bottle of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy in the house and gave him four drops in a teaspoonful of water and he got better at once." Sold by F. Duhring. *

A Minister's Mistake.

A city minister was recently handed a notice to be read from his pulpit. Accompanying it was a clipping from a newspaper bearing upon the matter. The clergyman started to read the extract and found that it began: "Take Kemp's Balsam, the best cough cure." This was hardly what he expected and, after a moment's hesitation, he turned it over, and found on the other side the matter intended for the reading.

A Few Pointers.

The recen statistics of the number of deaths show that the large majority die of consumption. This disease may commence with an apparently harmless cough which can be cured instantly by Kemp's Balsam for the Throat and Lungs, which is guaranteed to cure and relieve all cases. Price 25c and 50c. For sale by all druggists.
